Shared Physical Layer

Shared Virtual Layer

All machines are virtual and run on either of the physical machines

All physical hardware and virtual machines are shared with other clients, but fully protected from each other by windows active directory.

Shared hardware will be used to run virtual machines that are used by customers

Virtual machines that customers use may also be used to run other client's software.

Customer's data will be held on a shared virtual machine that runs on a shared physical server and is stored on a shared storage device.

All physical devices are duplicated and synchronised to allow for redundancy in case or hardware failure.
